Janice Clark is from Aberdeen has always had an interest in the traditional music and song of the North East of Scotland. Her ballad singing style was heavily influenced by great source singers like Jeannie Robertson, Lizzie Higgins and Stanley Robertson. Janice began singing at Folk Clubs and Festivals in her teens and travelled and recorded with bands such as Iolair, Lang Johnnie Moore and Highland Connection. She also has an interest in blues music and performed with Aberdeen-based blues band Off the Tracks, and her work often features close harmony arrangements. Janice has taught at Folk Festivals throughout Scotland and has been a regular tutor at the Adult Feis, teaching guitar, traditional song and harmony, and also tutors for Scottish Culture and Traditions in Aberdeen.
